Chandan: Favoragle Demographics Help Boost North Carolina's Economy

Economic conditions in the Carolinas and in Charlotte in particular are the envy of many other parts of the country, according to Sam Chandan, president of New York-based Chandan Economics and professor of real estate at the Wharton School of Business.

"A combination of a high quality of life, a low cost of living and an extraordinarily well-educated workforce have combined with a high-quality transportation structure and good quality housing stock to ensure a stronger and more stable recovery than what we see in many other parts of the country."
